From the Vice-Dean's Corner:

As the Fall 2019 granting agency deadlines are quickly approaching, I'd like to draw your attention to a few key points of information. First, if you were unsuccessful in a recent competition, you are very much encouraged to resubmit your application, revised to accommodate the reviewers' feedback. The Research Office can help you analyze the feedback and prepare a stronger application. Second, if you are resubmitting an application, do not assume that the application processes associated with a previous competition will be the same this time around. It is very important that you consult the latest application information available from the granting agency. For example, for CIHR project grants, applications submitted in French are now allowed two additional pages of research proposal. Also, applications that are rated 3.5 and higher are eligible for additional sources of funding if they align with Priority Announcements (PAs). Always have a look at the Frequently Asked Questions, Notes, and Latest News sections of the granting agency website and don't hesitate to contact the research office with any questions. Last but not least, be sure to know the internal (uOttawa) deadlines and procedures for applications. This year, Research Management Services (RMS) is implementing internal deadlines; dates will be forwarded to you as soon as they are determined. Also, if you will be submitting a notice or letter of intent (NOI or LOI), we kindly remind you to prepare and submit an RE Form. Please contact the Research Office if you have any questions about internal processes. We want to help you to avoid unnecessary delays or complications with your application. Warmest wishes as we ramp up for the Fall,

Jeff
