From the Vice-Dean's Corner:

I have had a couple of months to size up the job of Vice-Dean Research in the FHS, with tremendous support from our office team, Anne-Marie Gagnon (Senior Research Advisor) and Manon Danneau (Research Administrative Officer). What a ride! It is a large and complex dossier. Our Faculty is blessed with an enormous array of talented researchers and trainees. Our team has been focusing on getting the right balance between delivering efficiently on important projects that were already in the pipeline and standing back to look more strategically at where we want to go and what resources will be needed to get us there. Current projects include: improving our communications about research in the Faculty; moving ahead with realizing a vision for shared research platforms; and developing resources for improving research productivity and intensity. We will be arranging opportunities for informal get-togethers to share ideas (those who know me know that I love coffee-breaks!) and de-mystify the Research Office, as needed. I particularly want to strengthen our research culture, including building shared understanding and mutual support throughout the organization. In the meantime, our team is here to serve you as best we can. Our resources are not unlimited, but you should not hesitate to ask. It is important for this office to understand your needs and aspirations. I look forward our continued journey together.

Warmest wishes,
